

Atlantic City airport receives FAA grant for de-icing facility

MOLLY BILINSKI Staff Writer

EGG HARBOR TOWNSHIP — Atlantic City International Airport is getting $400,456 in grant money for a de-icing facility.

U.S. Senators Bob Menendez and Cory Booker announced Friday afternoon that the airport will receive a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for the construction of the facility.

The money is in addition to $8 million the airport will receive in federal funding for the facility, which was announced May 14.

“These important federal investments not only help ensure the safety of air travelers but stimulate our local economy and create new jobs,” Menendez said. “Modernizing our aging infrastructure helps keep our state economically competitive.”

Morristown Municipal Airport also will receive $7,021,659 for runway safety improvements, the senators said in a news release.

“This federal investment is another example of our shared commitment to restoring New Jersey’s aging infrastructure,” Booker said.

“By investing in the Morristown and Atlantic City airports, we are not only keeping travelers safe and moving, but also strengthening New Jersey’s economy.”